The horses had a good, even start and they were off at a moderate pace. At the first hurdle, which

West and Duffy jumped together, Mary Clark and Impetuous fourth, Buck having bolted and gone in another direction. The horses then ran to the end of the fractional track and jumped the fence into the south field, Duffy showing the way, half a dozen lengths in front of George West, Impetuous third, Mary Clark fourth. They crossed the south field and jumped over a low fence and then came out and leaped over a hardie at the foot of the bluff, Duffy leading, George West second, Impetuous third, Mary Clark bringing up the rear. They then turned into the north field and jumped three fences, after which they came up to leading at this time about six lengths, George West second, 100 yards or more ahead of Impecunious, who led Mary Clark a few lengths. The jumping by Duff was much applauded, the others occasionally making mistake. George West was following closely behind Duff, the latter passed up the hill at the picnic ground, and when Duff and him jumped the stone wall at the top they were pretty close together. Duff was West then came down the rocks in a hurry and were soon in the south field racing at their best. The crowd of spectators gathered in the middle of the field, and when George West was going over he struck the top and fell, throwing Gaffney, his rider, over his head, and then falling, rolled over on his back. The crowd was so excited that they did not, and fears were entertained that he was badly if not fatally injured. A number of the people ran to his aid, and lifting him up, discovered that he was a new recruit. As he had only been stunned and not much hurt, in a few minutes afterwards he walked over to the stand. During this time Duffy had been going on with the race, and was two hundred yards ahead of the other horses when he was overtaken by a high and light-colored gelding.

when they entered the south field, where the accident occurred to George West. After getting over the stone wall, Mary Clark leading, she made a mistake by taking the wrong side of the guide flag, followed by Impugnicious, who made the same error. Mary Clark's rider discovered his mistake before leaving the field and went back and corrected the error. Not so, however, with Impugnicious' rider; he kept on, and following after Duff, half a mile behind, but having gone the course correctly, was awarded second money. George West was mounted and ridden home, securing third place, and Buck came in fourth. Time of the race, 6:55. And thus ended the day's racing of the American Jockey Club at Jerome Park.

GARVIER RESIGNS THE DIAMOND QUE.

Itself.—
NEW YORK, Oct. 8, 1873.
H. W. COLLENDER, Esq.:—
DEAR SIR—I hereby beg to resign into your hands the Diamond Club membership of the championship of America at the four ball carrom game, as played on the 59x111 four pocket table. In doing this it is necessary that I should state the cause which impels me to this action. I feel that the Diamond Club no more represents the championship of the national game of billiards. At the time the prize was established it represented a game which was ment. It is now difficult to find a billiard hall in which a 9-ball four-pocket table exists. This is my reason for resigning, and, having demonstrated my ability to win the emblem, I now cheerfully give it up. I also desire to say that I shall play no more matches at the four-ball game on any size table. I reserve to myself the right to appear in any tournament, however, where this game is played. If in such a case I should be the victor I
